

New business offering accounting, tax services

Karen Spruill and Debbie Davis have announced the opening of their new business, Down South Accounting & Tax.

Located at 1025-D Director Court in Greenville, the business offers a variety of services.

Spruill and Davis said they can handle bookkeeping and payroll services for small businesses and tax preparation and resolution services for businesses and individuals.

A graduate of Elizabeth City State University, Spruill has more than 30 years of paralegal, bookkeeping and accounting experience, including working as a paid tax preparer for the last 12 years.

In 2013, she became an Enrolled Agent, which is the highest credential the IRS awards.

Upon retiring from years of public school teaching, Davis, a graduate of East Carolina University, chose accounting as her next career.

She obtained an associates degree in accounting from Pitt Community College and worked for three years as a paid tax preparer.

Davis said she participates in the IRS's annual Filing Season Program, a voluntary program established by the

CONTRIBUTED PHOTO

Karen Spruill and Debbie Davis have opened a new business, Down South Accounting & Tax.

IRS to differentiate tax preparers who elect to meet yearly continuing education goals.

Down South Accounting & Tax opened in November and is ready for the upcoming tax season.

Davis and Spruill said they keep up with the complex and changing tax regulations so their clients can have "a stress-free tax filing experience."